

Individual Offering - A one-on-one offering of an already existing course. A senior, for example, needs a particular course to graduate, and the course is not being offered again until after the proposed graduation date.

Independent Study - This is a course which does not already exist in the catalog, which a student proposes as a result of a specialized interest, and which requires the written consent of the instructor and the department chair.

Updated 6/2022